PROCEDURES

1. General

To promote the efficiency of the Army DCIPS workforce, the Army shall take disciplinary, performance-based, and adverse actions in accordance with these procedures, in the event of unacceptable performance or misconduct.

2. Performance-Based Actions

a. Unacceptable Performance. Actions to address unacceptable performance (e.g., improvement plans) will be implemented in accordance with Reference (g) and in accordance with merit principles identified in section 1612 in Reference (h).

b. Supervisors and managers may determine that an employee's performance is unacceptable at any time during the performance evaluation period. Employees will be given a reasonable opportunity to improve performance. In doing so, supervisors and managers shall notify the employee of the performance objectives and elements for which performance is unacceptable, and the performance requirements or standards that must be attained in order to demonstrate acceptable performance.

c. If, in the rating official's judgment, an Army DCIPS employee's performance is unacceptable, the rating official shall document feedback sessions with the employee. The rating official shall provide documentation to the employee; this documentation shall include, at a minimum, a statement of the performance requiring improvement, the performance improvement actions that the supervisor and employee have agreed to implement, and the consequences of failure to demonstrate acceptable performance improvement within an established period of time.

d. In deciding whether to reduce an employee's work level or grade or to remove the employee as a consequence of performance that fails to meet established standards and has been appropriately documented (i.e., provided an opportunity to improve via an Improvement Plan (IP), and failed to improve performance to an acceptable performance which was officially documented with an overall rating of "Unacceptable" on the employee's evaluation of record as provided for in Reference (g)), the Deciding Official should consider whether the remediation of performance is a reasonable possibility given such factors as mission demands, equity within their command / organization, qualification requirements, costs of replacement, the effect on performance in the work unit and other considerations supportive of sustaining a productive, performance-oriented work environment.

3. Executing Performance-Based Actions

a. Supervisors and managers, when executing performance-based actions must adhere to basic merit principles identified in section 1612 in Reference (h).

b. Under most circumstances the first level supervisor (the Proposing Official) will sign and issue the proposal and the second level supervisor (the Deciding Official) will be responsible for receiving and considering the employee's reply/rebuttal to the proposed notice and making a final decision on the matter by issuing a notice of decision.

c. Deciding Officials may decide upon such personnel actions as reduce an employee's rate of base pay, reduce an employee's work level, reduce an employee's grade, or remove an employee from Federal service, with appropriate documentation, as a result of performance that fails to meet established standards and has been appropriately documented. For these types of actions, the performance must have resulted in an overall rating of "Unacceptable" on the employee's evaluation of record and documented by an improvement plan required in accordance with Reference (g). Such actions shall be executed in accordance with merit principles. Proposal notices shall identify the specific performance objectives and/or performance elements against which performance has been found to be unacceptable, and cite specific examples of unacceptable performance. Note: Reassigning an employee to another position is also an option; however, reassignment of the employee to a position within the same work level is not viewed as an appropriate means of addressing unacceptable performance since employee has shown they cannot perform at their present work level.

d. The deciding official may reduce the employee's salary in accordance with Reference (i) to an amount not less than the minimum of the grade to which reduced. In no case may the employee's salary exceed the maximum for the grade to which reduced. An employee's annual compensation may not be reduced involuntarily more than once in a 12-month period as a result of an adverse action procedure. Supervisors and managers, in coordination with the servicing CPAC, must ensure that employees being placed in vacant positions as a result of a performance-based action meet all qualification requirements and conditions of employment.

e. Final decision notices resulting from a performance-based action must be coordinated with the servicing CPAC and the servicing legal counsel prior to issuance. Such review of the record assures that the decision is procedurally sound and legally sufficient.

f. If a decision notice cannot be delivered to the employee in person because of absence, the decision notice may be delivered by mail. In such cases, proof of mailing should be established.

g. The servicing CPAC must maintain a separate file for each employee's performance-based action in accordance with Reference (l). The file must include, at a minimum: (1) copies of the notice of proposed action and supporting documents (2) the answer of the employee when written, a summary thereof when made orally, (3) the notice of decision and reasons therefore, (4) any order effecting an action covered by this policy, together with any supporting material and (5) Notification of Personnel Action affecting the decision.

h. Employee Rights. When performance-based actions are proposed, (i.e., removal, reduction in work level or reduction in grade), an Army DCIPS employee is entitled to:

(1) Advanced Written Notice. A 30 calendar-day advance written notice of the proposed action. This notice shall identify the specific performance deficiencies and efforts made by management to improve the employee's performance.

(2) Representation. Army DCIPS employees may be represented by an individual of his or her choosing at his or her own cost to assist in preparing and/or presenting a reply to the notice of proposed action, grieving or appealing a decision to effect the performance-based action. If such a representative is chosen, the Army DCIPS employee must designate that individual in writing. After consultation with servicing human resources and legal office, the deciding official may disallow, as an employee's representative, an individual whose activities as a representative would cause a conflict of interest or position, compromise classified activities of the Government, conflict with the Army's priorities (e.g., an employee of the agency whose release from his or her official position would give rise to unreasonable costs or whose priority work assignments preclude his or her release), or give rise to additional cost to the Government.

(3) Reasonable Amount of Time to Respond. Employees will typically have 7 to 15 calendar days to answer the notification orally and / or in writing.

(4) Documentation. Employees have the right to review the documentation upon which the proposed action is based.

(5) Written Decision. A written final decision, the effective date of the action, including a statement that the action has been concurred with by the Deciding Official.

(6) Appeal Rights. Notification of the right to appeal the final decision. Army DCIPS employees have the right to appeal an performance-based action in accordance with paragraph 7 of this Enclosure.

4. Disciplinary and Adverse Actions (as defined separately in glossary).

a. Addressing misconduct is a part of the daily responsibility of supervisors. When disciplinary and adverse actions are needed to motivate Army DCIPS employees to conform to acceptable standards of conduct and prevent prohibited actions, management must be prepared to take disciplinary and adverse actions with evidence that the misconduct occurred, and that the disciplinary and adverse actions imposed upon Army DCIPS employees promotes the efficiency of the service.

b. Army's procedures, standards and guidelines for disciplinary and adverse actions based on misconduct will generally allow for specific progressive actions such as informal discipline (e.g., oral admonitions, letters of instruction, written warnings, etc.) and progressing to formal actions (e.g., written reprimands, suspensions, involuntary reductions in grade or pay, removal, etc.) in order to correct the employee's behavior. When misconduct occurs, managers of Army DCIPS employees should apply increasingly more severe penalties as the employee continues to breach the employee-employer relationship. The Department of Army Table of Penalties for Various Offenses contained in Reference (j) should be used as a guide when determining appropriate discipline. It is a guide to discipline, not a rigid standard. Deviations are allowable in several cases for a variety of reasons such as when the nature and severity of the offense or other factors preclude progressive approach.

c. Proposing and Deciding Officials should consider individual aggravating and mitigating circumstances when proposing and deciding on disciplinary or adverse actions.

(1) In determining the appropriate penalty, supervisors must observe the principle of "like penalties for like offenses in like circumstances." This means that penalties will be applied as consistently as possible. Deciding officials must establish that the penalty selected does not exceed the limits of reasonableness. Any decision notice concerning an adverse action must cite the fact that the relevant factors, as applicable, were considered in reaching the decision. These factors are often referred to as the Douglas factors based upon a well known Merit Systems Protection Board (MSPB) case (Douglas v. Veterans Administration) addressed this issue in detail. A number of factors which the deciding official must weigh in deciding an appropriate course of action are discussed in this case and identified below:

(a) The nature and seriousness of the offense, and its relation to the employee's duties, position, and responsibilities, including whether the offense was intentional or technical or inadvertent, or was committed maliciously or for gain, or was frequently repeated.

(b) The employee's job level and type of employment, including supervisory or fiduciary role, contacts with the public, and prominence of the position.

(c) The employee's past disciplinary record.

(d) The employee's past work record, including length of service, performance on the job, ability to get along with fellow workers, and dependability.

(e) The effect of the offense upon the employee's ability to perform at a satisfactory level and its effect upon the supervisor's confidence in the employee's ability to perform assigned duties.

(f) The consistency of the penalty with those imposed upon other employees for the same offense in like or similar circumstances.

(g) The consistency of the penalty with agency guidance on disciplinary actions.

(h) The notoriety of the offense or its impact upon the reputation of the agency.

(i) The clarity with which the employee was on notice of rules that was violated in committing the offense, or had been warned about the conduct in question

(j) The potential for the employee's rehabilitation.

(k) The mitigating circumstances surrounding the offense such as unusual job tensions, personality problems, mental impairment, harassment or bad faith, malice or provocation on the part of others involved in the matter.

(l) The adequacy and effectiveness of alternative sanctions to deter such conduct in the future by the employee or others.

(2) In situations involving off-duty misconduct, supervisors and managers must determine whether a nexus exists between off-duty misconduct and the employee's duties and whether the off-duty misconduct warrants an adverse / disciplinary action.

d. Supervisors and managers should weigh the stringent standards of on- or off-duty misconduct expected of employees required to obtain and maintain access to classified information and facilities. Supervisors and managers must report employee misconduct in accordance with Reference (k).

e. Care must be taken when considering disciplinary or adverse action involving denial or revocation of security clearance and/or suspension of access to classified information. Disciplinary or adverse action may be taken based on the underlying incidents or facts that caused the security clearance to be denied or revoked and/or the access to classified information to be suspended. However, except as set forth in paragraph 5 below, no action may be proposed or decided based solely on the denial or revocation of a security clearance or the suspension of access to classified information until the employee has been afforded the due process protections contained in paragraph 8-6 in reference (k). A waiver to the due process requirements may be granted IAW Reference (k) when a person is incarcerated on conviction of a criminal offense.

f. Unauthorized Absences. Managers will notify the supporting agency security manager when an employee has an unexplained absence for more than 3 work days, contact with that employee has been unsuccessful; and when the employee has had recent access to national defense information classified Secret or higher, or Communications Security (COMSEC) information, the unauthorized disclosure of which would result in serious or exceptionally grave danger to the United States.

5. Indefinite Suspension - RESERVED

6. Executing Disciplinary Actions

a. Supervisors and managers, when executing disciplinary actions must adhere to basic merit principles identified in section 1612 in Reference (h). The determination of which penalty to impose in a particular situation requires the application of responsible judgment. Disciplinary action taken is based on the conclusions that there is a preponderance of evidence available to support the reason(s) for action and that the disciplinary action is warranted and reasonable in terms of the circumstances which prompted it.

b. The Proposing Official (which in most circumstances will be the first level supervisor) will sign and issue the proposal and the Deciding Official (which in most circumstances will be the second level supervisor) will be responsible for receiving and considering the employee's reply/rebuttal to the proposed notice and making a final decision on the matter by issuing a notice of decision.

c. Final decision notices resulting from discipline must be coordinated with the servicing CPAC and servicing legal counsel prior to issuance in accordance with Reference (j). Such review of the record assures that the decision is procedurally sound and legally sufficient.

d. If a decision notice cannot be delivered to the employee in person because of absence, the decision notice may be delivered by mail. In such cases, proof of mailing should be established.

e. The servicing CPAC must maintain a separate file for each employee's disciplinary action in accordance with Reference (l). The file must include, at a minimum: (1) copies of the notice of proposed action and supporting documents, (2) the answer of the employee when written, a summary thereof when made orally, (3) the notice of decision and reasons therefore, (4) any order effecting an action covered by this policy, together with any supporting material, and (5) Notification of Personnel Action affecting the decision.

f. Employee Rights. When disciplinary actions are proposed, (i.e., suspensions of 14 calendar days or less) an Army DCIPS employee is entitled to:

(1) Advanced Written Notice. Proposing and Deciding Officials will provide for notice to the employee of the proposed action stating the specific reason(s) for the proposed action. Employees will have not less than 7 calendar days to respond.

(2) Representation. Army DCIPS employees may be represented by an individual of his or her choosing at his or her own cost to assist in preparing and/or presenting a reply to the notice of proposed action, grieving a decision to effect the disciplinary action. If such a representative is chosen, the Army DCIPS employee must designate that individual in writing. After consultation with servicing human resources and legal office, the deciding official may disallow, as an employee's representative, an individual whose activities as a representative would cause a conflict of interest or position, compromise classified activities of the Government, conflict with the Army's priorities (e.g., an employee of the agency whose release from his or her official position would give rise to unreasonable costs or whose priority work assignments preclude his or her release), or give rise to additional cost to the Government.

(3) Documentation. Employees have the right to review the documentation upon which the proposed action is based.

(4) Written Decision. A written final decision that specifies the instances of misconduct on which the decision is based, the effective date of the action, including a statement that the action has been concurred with by the Deciding Official.

(5) Grievance Rights. Notification of the right to grieve the final decision. Army DCIPS employees have the right to grieve the decision in accordance with Reference (m).

7. Executing Adverse Actions (for other than performance reasons)

a. Supervisors and managers, when executing adverse actions must adhere to basic merit principles identified in section 1612 in Reference (h).

b. The Proposing Official (which in most circumstances will be the first level supervisor) will sign and issue the proposal and the Deciding Official (which in most circumstances will be the second level supervisor) will be responsible for receiving and considering the employee's reply/rebuttal to the proposed notice and making a final decision on the matter by issuing a notice of decision.

c. Typically, removal based upon misconduct is imposed only after a progression of penalties taken in an effort to rehabilitate the employee unless removal for the first or second offense is warranted. Before removal is initiated, the facts and circumstances in the case must be carefully reviewed. Conclusions must be that the employee has demonstrated unwillingness or refusal to conform to established rules of conduct or has breached the employee-employer relationship in such a way that other rehabilitation is not appropriate and removal is warranted for the offense(s). Army DCIPS employees having engaged in violations of law, gross negligence with respect to national security protections, or fraud, waste and abuse will be considered for removal from the Federal service.

d. Deciding Officials may reduce an employee's rate of base pay, reduce an employee's work level, reduce an employee's grade, or remove an employee from Federal service, with appropriate documentation, as a result of performance that fails to meet established standards and has been appropriately documented

e. Supervisors and managers, in coordination with the servicing CPAC, must ensure that employees being placed in vacant positions as a result of an adverse action meet all qualification requirements and conditions of employment.

f. Demotion or removal from Federal service based solely on the inability to meet and/or maintain the requirements of a condition of employment, inability to perform the duties of the position, lack of work or funds, or statutory requirement will be processed as an adverse action.

g. Final decision notices resulting from an adverse action must be coordinated with the servicing legal counsel prior to issuance in accordance with Reference (j). Such review of the record assures that the decision is procedurally sound and legally sufficient.

h. If a decision notice cannot be delivered to the employee in person because of absence, the decision notice may be delivered by mail. In such cases, proof of mailing should be established.

i. The servicing CPAC must maintain a separate file for each employee's adverse action in accordance with Reference (l). The file must include, at a minimum: (1) copies of the notice of proposed action and supporting documents (2) the answer of the employee when written, a summary thereof when made orally, (3) the notice of decision and reasons therefore, (4) any order effecting an action covered by this policy, together with any supporting material, and (5) Notification of Personnel Action affecting the decision.

j. Employee Rights. When adverse actions are proposed, (i.e., removal, suspension of more than 14 calendar days, reduction in work level or reduction in grade), an Army DCIPS employee is entitled to:

(1) Advanced Written Notice. A 30 calendar-day advance written notice of the proposed action unless there exists reasonable cause to believe the employee has committed a crime for which a sentence of imprisonment may be imposed and the Proposing Official is proposing a removal or suspension including indefinite suspension. This notice shall identify the specific misconduct or behavior and cite specific examples of misconduct.

(2) Representation. Army DCIPS employees may be represented by an individual of his or her choosing at his or her own cost to assist in preparing and/or presenting a reply to the notice of proposed action, grieving or appealing a decision to effect the adverse action. If such a representative is chosen, the Army DCIPS employee must designate that individual in writing. After consultation with servicing human resources and legal office, the deciding official may disallow, as an employee's representative, an individual whose activities as a representative would cause a conflict of interest or position, compromise classified activities of the Government, conflict with the Army's priorities (e.g., an employee of the agency whose release from his or her official position would give rise to unreasonable costs or whose priority work assignments preclude his or her release), or give rise to additional cost to the Government.

(3) Reasonable Amount of Time to Respond. Employees will typically have 7 to 15 calendar days to answer the notification orally and / or in writing.

(4) Documentation. Employees have the right to review the documentation upon which the proposed action is based.

(5) Written Decision. A written final decision that specifies the instances of misconduct on which the decision is based, the effective date of the action, including a statement that the action has been concurred with by the Deciding Official.

(6) Appeal Rights. Notification of the right to appeal the final decision. Army DCIPS employees have the right to appeal an adverse action in accordance with paragraph 7 of this Enclosure.

8. Appeals

a. Except for terminations for national security purposes (see Enclosure 4), Army DCIPS employees who have successfully completed a DCIPS trial period and who are employed under other than a temporary appointment of two years or less, may appeal an adverse action or a performance-based action, but not a disciplinary action. An Army DCIPS employee who believes that the action was taken based on prohibited discrimination may file a complaint through Army Equal Employment Opportunity (EEO) channels. Disputes based solely on the employee's performance evaluation shall be addressed through the DCIPS performance evaluation administrative reconsideration process in accordance with Reference (g), except for adverse or performance-based action resulting from the performance evaluation of record. Disciplinary actions (as defined in glossary) may not be appealed, but may be grieved pursuant to Reference (m).

(1) Preference-eligible: Army DCIPS preference-eligible employees who have completed one year of current continuous service in the same or similar positions may appeal adverse and performance-based actions (as defined in glossary) to the U.S. Merit Systems Protection Board (MSPB) in accordance with Reference (n) except for terminations for national security reasons under 10, U.S.C. 1609 which are described in Enclosure 4 of this volume. However, if the employee bypasses the Army DCIPS employee appeals process (Enclosure 6 of this volume) and appeals directly to the MSPB, the employee may not subsequently appeal the same action utilizing the Army DCIPS employee appeals process.

(2) Non-preference eligible:

(a) Army DCIPS non-preference eligible employees who have not completed a DCIPS trial period may be separated with no right to appeal at any time if it is determined that the employee's conduct or performance is unsatisfactory unless otherwise provided for in Enclosure 1 of Reference (b).

(b) Army DCIPS non-preference eligible employees who have completed a DCIPS trial period may only appeal their removal, suspensions of more than 14 calendar days, reduction in grade or pay, or furlough for 30 calendar days or less, in accordance with the Army DCIPS appeal procedures in Enclosure 6 of this volume.

b. Employees covered by 1612(b) of Reference (h) may appeal adverse and performance-based actions to the MSPB.

c. Army DCIPS shall apply the standard of "substantial evidence" in section 7701(c)(1)(A) of title 5, U.S.C. (Reference (o)) in adjudicating employee appeals of actions resulting from unacceptable performance.

d. Army DCIPS shall apply the standard of “preponderance of the evidence” in section 7701(c)(1)(B) of Reference (o) in adjudicating employee appeals of actions resulting from unacceptable conduct.

e. Alternative Dispute Resolution (ADR) is authorized for use to resolve an employee appeal if mutually agreed to by the manager and employee (see paragraph 8).

f. Employee appeals of termination decision effected under Enclosure 4 of this volume shall be adjudicated by the Secretary of Defense.

g. An employee allegation of a prohibited personnel practice or prohibited discrimination may form the basis of an appeal. In a case in which the employee alleges that an action taken to address unacceptable performance was the result of a prohibited personnel practice as defined in section 2302(b) of Reference (o), the employee may either appeal the action to the MSPB in accordance with Reference (n) or make a complaint to the Army Inspector General, or take other appropriate avenues (e.g., filing a complaint with the U.S. Office of Special Counsel, etc.).

9. Nontraditional Approaches

a. The Department of the Army has not established common or mandatory agency-wide nontraditional discipline and dispute resolution programs. Organizations and installations have been allowed to use innovative approaches to nontraditional disciplinary actions such as AD and alternative dispute resolution (ADR) to determine what might work best, if anything, in their individual operating environments. ADR may include peer panels, mediators, or other impartial individuals or panels necessary to assist the parties in resolving disputes. Those organizations and installations that have found such nontraditional programs work well in their operating environments are encouraged to continue their use. Other organizations are encouraged to test nontraditional approaches to discipline, dispute resolution and formalizing them if they prove effective.

b. Using Alternative Discipline (AD). Some organizations have established formal AD programs that cover specific behavioral offenses, such as those dealing with absenteeism. In such programs where a written AD agreement has been signed by both management and the offending employee documenting the AD, the AD may serve as the basis for the enhanced penalty, e.g. second or third offense. The servicing legal counsel should be consulted when enhancing a penalty based upon a prior nontraditional discipline offense with the discipline being imposed

DEFINITIONS

Acceptable Performance

Performance that meets an employee's objectives, requirements or standards at a level of performance above the "Unacceptable" level.

Admonishment

A notification given by a superior to an employee concerning conduct deficiencies and warning the employee that a disciplinary action or letter of instruction may be imposed for continued deficiencies.

Adverse Action

A removal from Federal Service, suspension for more than 14 calendar days, furlough of 30 calendar days or less, or involuntary reduction in work level or grade, or base pay taken by management to address conduct or performance deficiencies. These actions do not include those resulting from reductions or adjustments in force pursuant to AP-V 2004 to furloughs of more than 30 calendar days, or performance-based actions taken consistent with Enclosure 3 (procedures) of this policy.

Alternative Discipline

Alternative Discipline (AD) seeks to maintain good order and discipline within the work environment through a process that; (1) focuses on the work-related problems caused by an employee's conduct and, (2) creates an environment in which an employee can acknowledge and correct the problem without the adversarial confrontations or impact normally associated with traditional discipline systems.

MSPB case law indicates that alternative discipline must be structured to meet the requirements of progressive discipline. This includes documenting in writing prior offenses/counseling; placing the employee on notice that it intends to rely on the record of those actions in assessing future penalties; and, when using prior offenses to enhance a penalty, citing the previous actions/counseling in proposal letters thereby allowing employees to dispute their validity. AD may be established as an alternative to formal discipline under the requirements of this chapter.

Alternative Dispute Resolution

Any procedure that parties agree to use, instead of a formal adjudication, to resolve issues in controversy, including, but not limited to, settlement negotiations, reconciliation, facilitation, mediation, fact-finding, mini-trials, and arbitration, or any combination thereof. The purpose of ADR is to offer parties an opportunity to openly express their positions and interests in a confidential setting with the goal being to resolve their dispute in a mutually satisfactory fashion.

Appeal

A request for review of an agency action.

Appellant

The party who appeals.

Classified

Information which, at the time of a violation of this section, is, for reasons of national security, specifically designated by a United States Government Agency for limited or restricted dissemination or distribution as defined in 18 U.S.C. § 798.

Deciding Official

Management official who makes the final decision in a formal disciplinary action. Typically the supervisor of the Proposing Official (employees 2nd line supervisor)

Disciplinary Action

A management action taken to correct improper or inappropriate behavior or conduct and intended to be corrective in nature. These do not constitute an adverse action but are used to correct misconduct or delinquency or to motivate employees to improve their workplace behavior or conduct. Disciplinary actions include oral admonishments, letter of caution, written warning, reprimands, to suspensions of 14 calendar days or less.

Electronic Filing (e-filing)

Filing and receiving documents in electronic form in proceedings within the Board's appellate or original jurisdiction in accordance with Reference (n).

Employees

Any Army civilian employee as defined in section 2105 of title 5, U.S.C. (Reference (o)) who is covered by DCIPS, except for DISES and DISL employees.

Evaluation of Record

See definition in glossary of Reference (g).

Formal Discipline

Formal disciplinary actions consist of written reprimands and suspensions of 14 calendar days or less.

Grade

See definition in glossary of Reference (t).

Informal Discipline

Informal disciplinary actions are taken by the supervisor on his/her own initiative in situations of a minor nature involving unacceptable behavior. Oral admonitions, letters of instruction and written warnings are examples of informal discipline.

Letter of Instruction

A written notification (order) issued by a superior to an employee concerning conduct deficiencies, such as sick leave abuse or tardiness, which sets forth requirements and procedures to be followed by the employee to avoid a future disciplinary action for similar deficient conduct.

Nexus

The connection or link between the misconduct and the employee's conduct that establishes that the adverse action will promote the efficiency of the service.

Pay

The rate of basic salary fixed by law or administrative action for the position held by an employee.

Performance-based Action

A removal, reduction in base pay, or reduction in work level or grade as a consequence of performance that fails to meet established standards and has been properly documented as unacceptable.

Progressive Discipline

A series of actions ranging from counseling, oral admonishment, letter of caution, and written reprimand, to suspension designed to correct repeated acts of inappropriate behavior or misconduct. Management officials shall decide what the penalty shall be as part of a disciplinary action. Progressive discipline is an element of just cause and provides guidelines in assessing penalties. It does not require any rigid application of a progression of penalties but rather requires an evaluation of whether the application of the progression of lesser penalties to more harsh penalties is appropriate. It may be entirely appropriate that more severe, or the harshest of penalties may be appropriate for even a first offense. Under this concept of progressive discipline, a manager may select any penalty considered appropriate, subject to the overall principle of just cause.

Proposing Official

The management official who issues a notice of proposed adverse action in the formal discipline process. Typically the first line supervisor of the affected employee.

Removal

Involuntary separation of an employee from the Federal service initiated by the agency or the Merit Systems Protection Board under parts 432, or 752 of title 5, Code of Federal Regulations; section 1201 of title 5, U.S. Code; or comparable agency statutes or regulations.

Suspension

Placing an employee in a temporary status without duties and pay for disciplinary reasons.

Table of Penalties

A guide for determining the most appropriate charges and penalties for behavior(s) or action(s) which warrant corrective/remedial action and helps to ensure a relative consistency of penalties for like offenses.

Unacceptable Performance

Performance of an employee that fails to meet established performance standards or requirements, and would result in an evaluation of “Unacceptable” (“1”) under DCIPS performance management.

Written Reprimand

A written disciplinary action issued by a superior to an employee based on specific misconduct.

Written Warning

A non-disciplinary written notification issued by a superior to an employee concerning misconduct and warning the employee that a disciplinary action may be imposed unless the conduct improves.
